ABSTRACT

Deb Dunn is the Transgender Health Coordinator for the LGBT Resource Center of Chase Brexton Health Care in Baltimore, Maryland. At Chase Brexton, Deb provides leadership and coordination of care for trans patients, establishes best practices for medical transgender care, trains medical providers, provides consultation to external organizations on trans-related issues including employee transition, engages in advocacy at the state level, and identifies research and funding opportunities related to transgender care. She also provides primary care services to a large panel of LGBTQ+ patients as well as trans & non-binary patients who she assists in their transition by prescribing hormones. Deb will discuss how her work at Chase Brexton is educating the nation on transgender health care and she is excited to answer all of our questions surrounding gender affirming hormone treatment. Deb Dunn graduated from Howard University's physician assistant program and holds an MBA from Johns Hopkins University. In addition, Deb serves on national teams of expert transgender medical professionals to write guidelines for treating and prescribing medications for adults and adolescents who are transitioning. Dunn is also part of the team that created Gender JOY (Journeys of Youth), a multidisciplinary program for transgender diverse youth, adolescents and families.
